

UNITING PRIVACY AND THE FIRST AMENDMENT IN THE 21ST CENTURY

Friday, May 9, 2003
Preservation Park
1233 Preservation Park Way
Oakland, CA

No Constitutional values are more cherished than freedom of expression and the right to privacy. Yet too often privacy and the First Amendment have been set against one another, sometimes to the detriment of citizens and consumers. The "Uniting Privacy and the First Amendment in the 21st Century" Symposium will explore how best to safeguard these two essential rights. It is a meeting for advocates and academics, experts and interested persons, a conference for people who value both freedom of expression and the right to privacy. Information Sessions and interactive Working Groups will foster problem solving and future collaboration among attendees. Make sure to indicate on your registration form which Working Groups you'll attend.

Jeffrey Rosen's book, The Unwanted Gaze: The Destruction of Privacy in America, was described in the New York Times as "the definitive text on privacy perils in the digital age."

FRIDAY MORNING: PRIVACY'S ROLE IN PROMOTING FIRST AMENDMENT RIGHTS

Freedom of expression and privacy are all too often cast as conflicting interests. By focusing on this conflict, however, one can overlook the ways in which privacy serves an important role in enhancing the exercise of First Amendment rights. In these sessions, leading advocates will examine some of the ways in which privacy and First Amendment rights have a powerful synergy.

General Session Panel

Anonymous Advocacy on the Internet: Cindy Cohn, Legal Director, Electronic Frontier Foundation

Privacy and Freedom of Association: Ann Brick, Staff Attorney, ACLU of Northern California

Bookseller Patron Privacy: Neal Coonerty, Bookshop Santa Cruz, American Booksellers Foundation for Free Expression

Library Patron Privacy: Judith F. Krug, Director, American Library Association Office of Intellectual Freedom

Working Groups

1. Protecting Anonymous Online Advocates

Facilitated by Cindy Cohn; Yan Ge and Emily Zarins, Samuelson Law, Technology and Public Policy Clinic. This Working Group will brainstorm ways to change the legal processes that are used to expose the identity of online advocates so that these processes are more protective of the rights of anonymous Internet speakers.

2. Tools and Techniques for Protecting Privacy in Associations

Facilitated by Ann Brick. This Working Group will share tools and techniques with a goal of developing a set of best practices for protecting the privacy of association memberships, supporters and internal deliberations.

3. Legislative Solutions for Protecting Library and Bookstore Patron Records

Facilitated by Neal Coonerty, Judith F. Krug, and Mary Minow, Policy Analyst, California Association of Library Trustees and Commissioners. This Working Group will consider current legislative proposals to strengthen library and bookseller patron privacy rights and will seek to build alliances to support the bills.

4. Facial Challenges to Surveillance Laws

Facilitated by Lee Tien, Electronic Frontier Foundation. This Working Group will seek to develop a jurisprudential method for bringing facial challenges to surveillance laws parallel to the way in which laws directly abridging traditional First Amendment rights may be challenged.

FRIDAY MORNING: MUTUAL THREATS TO PRIVACY AND THE FIRST AMENDMENT

Predictive Surveillance: An Emerging Threat to Privacy and the First Amendment. This panel will explore the civil liberties implications of predictive surveillance technologies such as data mining, with the goal of providing activists with tools and strategies for protecting privacy and First Amendment rights.

Historical Overview: Ruth Rosen, San Francisco Chronicle

Technology: Peter Neumann, SRI

Constitutional Issues: TBD

Legislative Issues: David Sobel, Electronic Privacy Information Center

FRIDAY AFTERNOON: FREE SPEECH AND PRIVACY IN CONFLICT

There are areas where the rights of free speech and privacy remain in conflict. We will examine four such areas and attempt to move towards establishing common ground.

General Session Panel

Privacy and the Constitution: Daniel Solove, Seton Hall School of Law

Trafficking in Private Information: Chris Hoofnagle, Electronic Privacy Information Center

Investigative Use of Personal Information: Beth Givens, Privacy Rights Clearinghouse

Newsgathering and Privacy: TBD

Working Groups

1. Public Records and Privacy

Panelists: Daniel Solove; Kim Alexander, California Voter Foundation; Terry Francke, California Newspaper Publishers Association/First Amendment Coalition; Dana Mitchell, Counsel, California State Senate. This Working Group will discuss how to resolve the tension between individual privacy and public access to government, with the goal of identifying legislative approaches.

2. Marketing Private Information

Panelists: Chris Hoofnagle; Jerry Flannigan, Foundation for Taxpayer and Consumer Rights; Webster Guillory, Orange County Assessor; Sonia Arrison, Pacific Research Institute. This group will debate the societal costs and benefits of the traffic in private information.

3. Investigative Uses of Personal Information

Panelists: Francie Koehler, California Association of Licensed Investigators; Les Rosen, Employment Screening Resources; James Cawood, Association of Threat Assessment Professionals; Beth Givens. This group will debate the pros and cons of the present legal and regulatory scheme for controlling the use of personal information for investigative purposes.

4. Practical Lessons for Working Journalists on the New Rules on Privacy

Facilitators: James Wheaton (moderator), First Amendment Project; Cynthia Gorney, law and ethics professor at U.C. Berkley School of Journalism and a former reporter with the Washington Post; additional facilitators TBD. This panel will be a practical skills session for working journalists on the changing rules of privacy as they affect newsgathering.

This Symposium is funded in part by a grant from the Privacy Rights Fund of the Rose Foundation for Communities and the Environment.
